

Idaho Society for Clinical Social Work, in conjunction with Boise State University, School of Social Work, presents its March training:

The Ethics of Social Justice

Facilitator: Lori Watsen, MSW, LCSW
Clinical Assistant Professor
Boise State University, School of Social Work

- How does social justice inform and influence our practice as social workers?
- What does it mean to ethically hold up the values and standards of social justice in our daily work with clients?
- How do we enact and advance social justice in micro practice and in work with individuals and families?

This interactive workshop will provide participants the opportunity to explore these questions. Participants will be introduced to Social Work Advocacy and Liberation Health practice models which are both firmly grounded in a social justice framework.

When: Saturday, March 17, 2018

Time: Training Workshop, 9:30 – 11:30 am; ISCSW Member Meeting 11:30 am

Where: Boise State University, Interactive Learning Center (ILC), Room 202

Parking: Brady Garage is closest to the ILC (there is a charge for parking on campus)

Cost: Free to members and $50 at the door to others (any master's level mental health professional is welcome)

Registration and/or renewal of membership can be done online at

<http://icsw.org/shop/>

Note: March 1st is the membership renewal date and must be done prior to attending this workshop to be included as a benefit with your dues.

<https://maps.boisestate.edu/map/?id=715#!s/key=ILC?m/89076>

Link to an interactive map that shows the ILC and you may search for the Brady Garage